“ I miss visiting Michael and Marie in the Bearsville days. There were many fascinating stories of Michael's police career, plus a few good laughs at that house. Michael and Marie's dedication and charitable work in their local community was something I truly admired. My condolences to his spouse and his wonderful family.

“ Mike told me that he moved to the Woodstock area approximately 18 years ago. Shortly after moving in his family called 911 because of an infant choking. I showed up along with the rest of the rescue squad to help out. Luckily it turned out to be not a big deal. Mike asked what he could do, and we suggested he join the Woodstock volunteer fire department. He did, and became a fire fighter at his local fire station also joining the rescue squad which is part of the fire department, and held many offices in both organizations. He also became an elected fire commissioner and served on the board for many years. He was a dedicated advocate for the members of the Woodstock fire district, fighting for their rights and the ability to have the best training, equipment, and promoting the best leaders for the organization. Mike often explained about how proud he was to be a New York City police officer and detective sergeant. Also, he was very proud to be a volunteer firefighter for many years and helping out with the rescue squad driving on many emergencies to help his local residence and towns people. His entire time here at Woodstock Mike was an I outspoken advocate for anyone who needed support. He's also very outspoken and protective against bullies and people that try to intimidate others. Stepping in to try to mediate, complicated and difficult issues, never shying away from an controversy. Mike will be greatly missed here in Woodstock.

Thank you for that story Jim. That was my baby girl Nicole who is now 26 years old and in law school. Both my dad and the Woodstock fire department came to her rescue that night. She was only a few months old. It was meant to be that he be a part of your organization. Liz
