“ Dear mom, you now shine like a diamond in the vast universe and rest safely under God's arms! An echo of your voice tugs quietly at my heart saying your pain and suffering has ended. I couldn't be more relieved believing it so. We have been through so much together. The love and connection we've shared surely outnumbers what most could have known. You are and always were the light in my heart. I have been given your strength which oversees anyone I've known, your forgiveness to all that done you wrong, your courage and perseverance to never quit or give up, your faithfulness to God and to your family, your child like spirit to be funny and to laugh and enjoy the moment; to live in the moment..., and your unconditional love that foreseen any infliction or wrong doing. There is so much more that encompasses you of endless words and praises that only a mother such as you could have given such wisdom to me. I am proud to be your daughter and will carry with me all you have taught and shown me. Till I see you again. Precious love... now and always. I will miss you dearly. I love you mommy!
